Rosseti is ready to increase debts for the sake of national construction projects

Rosseti is preparing to increase the volume of investments by more than 30% in the next decade, mainly through the construction of grids for the BAM and Transsib, follows from the long-term development program of the state holding. Under the current regulation, the company's debt burden will grow significantly, and its profits will decrease, however, Rosseti may improve its performance due to not yet approved initiatives. Rosseti's long-term plans also exclude the privatization of subsidiaries, provide for the launch of an option program for top management and a change in dividend policy.
