Smolenskenergo talks about the rules for connecting backup power supply sources

The branch of Rosseti Centre, PJSC - Smolenskenergo reminds residents of the Smolensk region about the basic rules for safe connection of backup sources of electricity supply.

Power engineers point out that failure to comply with these rules creates a threat of electrical injuries, equipment damage and fires, both for the owner of the backup power supply and for residents connected to this network. In addition, unauthorized connection (of stationary or portable power generating installations) to backup sources creates a danger of electric shock to specialists of the power grid organization performing work on the external power supply network.
