The Ministry of Energy wants to change the goals of the energy efficiency program, taking into account sanctions

The Ministry of Energy, the Ministry of Transport and the Ministry of Industry and Trade of the Russian Federation do not want to participate in the development of a state program to improve energy efficiency under the auspices of the Ministry of Economic Development (MED), Kommersant writes on 22 May. According to these ministries, the proposed measures duplicate existing strategic documents. The Ministry of Energy proposes to revise the goals of the state program, taking into account sanctions and "a change in priorities towards energy security." Analysts estimate the cost of the state program at RUB 20 trillion until 2035, but they fear that due to the loss of interest of the sectoral ministries, it will turn into a formal document without financial support.
