The population to be able to participate in demand management during the transition to increased industrial tariffs

The Ministry of Energy may invite the population to take part in reducing the demand for electricity: at certain times, turning off household appliances, which should lead to unloading of the energy system and a reduction in prices. To do this, you will have to switch to the tariffs of commercial enterprises, which are on average 34% higher than prices for the population, receiving a reward in return. Analysts doubt that such a deal will be profitable, proposing to involve young people and environmental activists in the experiment through mobile services.

Tambovenergo warns of penalties for damaging insulators on power lines

In connection with the beginning of the spring hunting season, the branch of Rosseti Centre, PJSC - Tambovenergo warns: criminal punishment is provided for intentional damage to insulators on power transmission line poles. As a rule, cases of damage to electrical equipment, including with the help of firearms, become more frequent during this period. In most cases of damage to insulators, the branch's specialists find shell casings from hunting weapon cartridges at the scene of the incident. When targeting wires and insulators, attackers do not assume that this is a criminal offense.
