

ELECTRIC POWER INDUSTRY NEWS

Industry proposes to limit preferential electricity consumption for citizens

The Community of Energy Consumers proposed that the government establish a maximum ceiling for electricity consumption at preferential tariffs for the population. The limit level, in their opinion, should be 10.8 thousand kWh per month - this is the maximum amount of energy that a facility connected to a power of 15 kW can technically consume. The measure will not affect citizens, but will help overcome gray miners and reduce the burden on business, the industry believes. Deputy Prime Minister Alexander Novak instructed the FAS and other regulators to study the issue. However, the initiative may not work due to regional differences, analysts warn.
