Ministry of Energy proposed compensating power generators for costs of restoring power plants following attacks by adding a surcharge to the price of capacity

The Russian Ministry of Energy has drafted a government resolution "On Amending Resolution of the Government of the Russian Federation No. 1172 of 27 December 2010", which proposes adding a new clause, 126[1], to the Rules for the Wholesale Electricity and Capacity Market. The document provides for the compensation of generating companies for expenses incurred in restoring power plants damaged as a result of acts of unlawful interference, including terrorist acts or acts of sabotage, involving the use of conventional weapons.
