The energy system of the Russian Federation is ready for increased loads on defense industry enterprises

The Russian energy system is ready for changes in the level of consumption in the industrially developed regions of the country, including the regions where defense industry enterprises are located, RIA Novosti was told in the "System Operator of the UES" (the dispatcher of the energy system of the Russian Federation). Russian President Vladimir Putin on Tuesday, during a meeting with heads of defense industry enterprises, said that it is necessary to increase the production capacities of a number of defense industry enterprises and, where necessary, modernize them.
